DEDICATION

We are pleased to dedicate this book to the late Jørgen Hilleberg of the University of Aarhus, Denmark, for the outstanding service he provided to Thai malacology during his quarter of a century in Thailand as the Danish Advisor to the Phuket Marine Biological Center and as the organiser of the Tropical Marine Mollusc Programme.

ABSTRACT

Thailand is a large Southeast Asian country on the margin of the biodiverse coral triangle. It has a 3,299 km coastline on both the Gulf of Thailand in the Pacific Ocean and the Andaman Sea in the Indian Ocean. An extensive literature and internet search documented over 15,000 records of 3,359 species of Thai marine and estuarine molluscs. Records of 137 species are considered to be incorrect or dubious as their known ranges do not include Southeast Asia. The remaining 3,222 species include 1,963 gastropods, 1,116 bivalves, 129 cephalopods, seven polyplacophorans and seven scaphopods; no records were found of monoplacophorans or aplacophorans. Most records cannot be verified through specimens lodged in museums. The taxonomy of all species has been updated to their current status. Previous names used, occurrence on the Gulf of Thailand and/or Andaman Sea coast, and literature records and notes (if any) are provided for each species. Two invasive species, the mussels Mytilopsis sallei (Récluz, 1849) and Mytella strigata (Hanley, 1843), are known to have been introduced to Thailand, but there may be more introduced species that have not yet been detected. Strategies to further document the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand are proposed.

INTRODUCTION

The Indo-West Pacific is the largest marine biogeographical province in the world. It spans the tropical oceans from about 30 degrees north of the equator to about 30 degrees south, and extends across the vast regions of the Indian and Pacific Oceans from Hawaii to the east coast of Africa. Within the Indo-Pacific, the coral triangle, from the Philippines and Malaysia to Papua New Guinea, is the most megadiverse area of the world oceans (Hoegh-Guldberg, 2009). Molluscs are the “insects of the sea” with by far the greatest biodiversity of the animal groups. While there is no complete inventory of the marine molluscs of any area, the Philippines have received the most scientific attention. The Philippine Islands have a rich diversity of marine habitats and an accordingly broad diversity of marine mollusc species that have long been studied, with 5,835 marine mollusc species having been documented in the country (Poppe, 2017).

In contrast to the Philippines, the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand have been relatively poorly studied, but there have been several compilations of the phylum. Early records include: Morlet (1889) with 167 species; Lynge (1909) with 316 bivalves; and Suvatti (1937, 1938) with 270 species. Nateewathana et al. (1981) reported 548 species in the Phuket Marine Biological Center (PMBC) collection at that time; the number has grown significantly since then. The largest compilation of Thai marine and estuarine molluscs was Nabhitabhata (2009), with 1,267 species. Recently, BEDO (2017a–e) listed 1,270 species. Having been published over a span of nearly 130 years, there have been considerable taxonomic changes that make direct comparisons of the above lists difficult. Clearly the marine molluscan fauna of Thailand, with a broad diversity of habitats on both the Pacific and Indian Oceans, is much greater than indicated in the above compilations.

The goals of the present book are to first compile as exhaustive a list as is possible of the scientific information on the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand, then to update the scientific names of the species recorded. The study will provide a basis for further scientific investigations of the group in Thailand. It is emphasised that in the absence of voucher material of most of the species in publicly accessible locations, the present paper provides only an introduction to marine and estuarine species recorded from Thailand and identifications of many of the species listed may be incorrect. Dayrat (2011) emphasised the risk of assuming such unverified literature records were correct. 16 species of the nudibranch genus Discodoris were recorded in the literature from the Mediterranean Sea until a revision of the group demonstrated that the genus is in fact absent in the area. However, the present paper provides an entry point into our understanding of the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand.

MATERIAL AND METHODS

An extensive literature search, both in English and Thai, was undertaken of the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand, including books, journals and revisions of family and genera that might include records of species from Thailand. The Phuket Marine Biological Center (PMBC) publishes both a Research Bulletin and Special Publication series; all issues of each series were examined. In addition, all volumes of the Tropical Marine Mollusc Programme are available on the PMBC website and were searched. Molluscan journals, such as Indo-Pacific Mollusca, Monographs of Marine Mollusca, Molluscan Research and The Veliger, were also consulted. Available shell books were also examined. An extensive internet search was conducted, including Google Scholar and open repositories, i.e., ResearchGate and Academia.edu, using terms such as 'Thailand', and phrases associated with molluscs and the various classes. Literature cited sections of papers reporting Thai marine and estuarine molluscs were used to locate further papers. To be as inclusive as possible, grey literature was also used. The literature search concentrated on revisions of particular families and genera and faunal surveys. Other literature, such as ecological and physiological studies, are not cited unless they add to list of species recorded in Thailand. A recent development is the trend for international museums to database their collections and place the information on the web in sites such as the Global Biodiversity Information Facility (GBIF; <https://www.gbif.org/>). GBIF was searched to obtain currently available Thai records. As this and other facilities develop, more information will become available on the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand.

Only taxa identified to species are included in this analysis; those identified only by family or genus are disregarded as there is no way of knowing whether species A of one author is the same as species A of another paper. The internet search turned up numerous records of Thai shells for sale by dealers; these are transitory, unverified and were not used.

Every species listed in all of the publications was checked against the World List of Marine Species (WoRMS; WoRMS Editorial Board [2018]) to determine the current valid name and family placement. If a species could not be located in WoRMS Editorial Board (2019), alternative spellings, such as changing the ending from '-a' to '-us' or vice versa, and other generic placements were tried. Other information provided by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) was included, such as species listed as uncertain, nomen dubium, taxon inquirendum, etc. Where this was unsuccessful, other sources were used, such as Ruhoff (1980) and other internet databases such as the Atlas of Living Australia (ALA, 2019). Over 15,000 citations to the scientific literature on Thai molluscs are provided in the list below.

Some freshwater species can tolerate low salinity brackish water. This is a continuum, with each species having its own salinity tolerances. Species listed by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) as only occurring in freshwater are not included, but freshwater species that also inhabit brackish water are listed.

The higher-level systematics of molluscs are currently in a state of flux as new data, particularly genetic information, is added to our knowledge. The higher taxonomy used in this book follows WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). Because of inconsistent use across the phylum, subgenera and subspecies are not used. However, cephalopods are an exception as many papers list cephalopod subgenera.

The following information is provided for each species: current scientific name including genus, species, author and date; names under which the species was previously recorded in Thailand; whether the species was recorded from the Gulf of Thailand and/or Andaman Sea coastline of Thailand; and literature references to the species in date order and notes (if any). Most changes in species taxonomy have been transfers of a species from one genus to another. Alternative names used for a species are shown so future researchers can trace the species through the various publications. Misspellings in earlier references are included for the same reason. Very minor changes, such as changes in the ending of a name from '-a' or '-us' or vice versa, after the gender of a species changed upon a move to another genus, or differences in the year the species was described (i.e., 1841 versus 1842), are not shown. However, if the time difference is substantial (i.e., 1841 versus 1860), it is included. In some cases, the author shown in the Thai reference is not the actual author of the species; this is also indicated. Also included are cases where the Thai reference did not give an author and date. However, full citation of each species is provided as recorded by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). "Reported as" indicates that the species was not reported with the currently accepted name. "Also reported as" indicates that the species has been reported from Thailand using the current name but has also been reported under different names.

Until very recently, the original scientific literature was essentially unavailable in Thailand, and there were few shell books available. In most cases species were, out of necessity, identified by Thai researchers based on photographs and descriptions in the shell books, often black-and-white photocopies of colour illustrations, and other secondary sources. Without a knowledge of closely related species, this sometimes resulted in species being incorrectly identified as those figured in the books. We have listed these misidentifications where they were obvious in Appendix 1, but there are undoubtedly others. PMBC has a small but growing collection of species that can be examined. The Thai Natural History Museum (THNHM) is also small, and there is a mollusc collection at Kasetsart University. The rapid development of the internet and literature databases, such as the Biodiversity Heritage Library (<https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/>), has recently made large portions of the original taxonomic literature much more available to all researchers. Future identifications should be based on the original descriptions, if available. Revisions of families or genera are the second preference, followed by books on Thai marine and estuarine molluscs. If books on overseas localities are used, care should be taken to ensure that the geographic range of each species includes Thailand.

THE MARINE AND ESTUARINE MOLLUSCS OF THAILAND

MARINE AND ESTUARINE HABITATS OF THAILAND

Thailand is a large country in Southeast Asia with a land area of 513,115 km<sup>2</sup> and a coastline of 3,299 km. It is a peninsular country lying 5–20°N and 97–106°E. Thailand has two extensive coastlines, the eastern coast located along the Gulf of Thailand in the Pacific Ocean, and the western coast facing the Andaman Sea in the Indian Ocean (Fig. 1). The Thai Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) in the Gulf of Thailand has an area of 304,000 km<sup>2</sup>, and the EEZ along the Andaman coast is 116,280 km<sup>2</sup> (Chavanich et al., 2010a).

The climate of coastal Thailand is tropical, with an average annual temperature of 27.6°C, ranging from a mean of 25.5°C in January to 29.9°C in April. While the average annual rainfall is 1,556 mm, it is seasonal and there is little rain during winter and summer. Average rainfall is highest in September (378.3 mm) and lowest in December (4.6 mm). The average annual relative humidity is 76.1%, varying from a low of 70.0% in January to a high of 81.4% in October (Pumijumnong, 2014).

The intertidal and shallow water environments of the two coasts are similar, with extensive rocky shores, sand beaches, tidal flats, mudflats, estuaries, coral reefs, seagrass beds and mangroves occurring on both coasts (Fig. 2). There is an increasing number and variety of artificial habitats such as jetties, bridges, roads and aquaculture facilities, particularly extensive prawn farms on both coasts. Bays and islands are more numerous on the Andaman coast (Chavanich et al., 2010a). There are about 545 islands on the Andaman coast, 100 in the eastern Gulf of Thailand and 150 in the western Gulf (Phongsuwan et al., 2013).

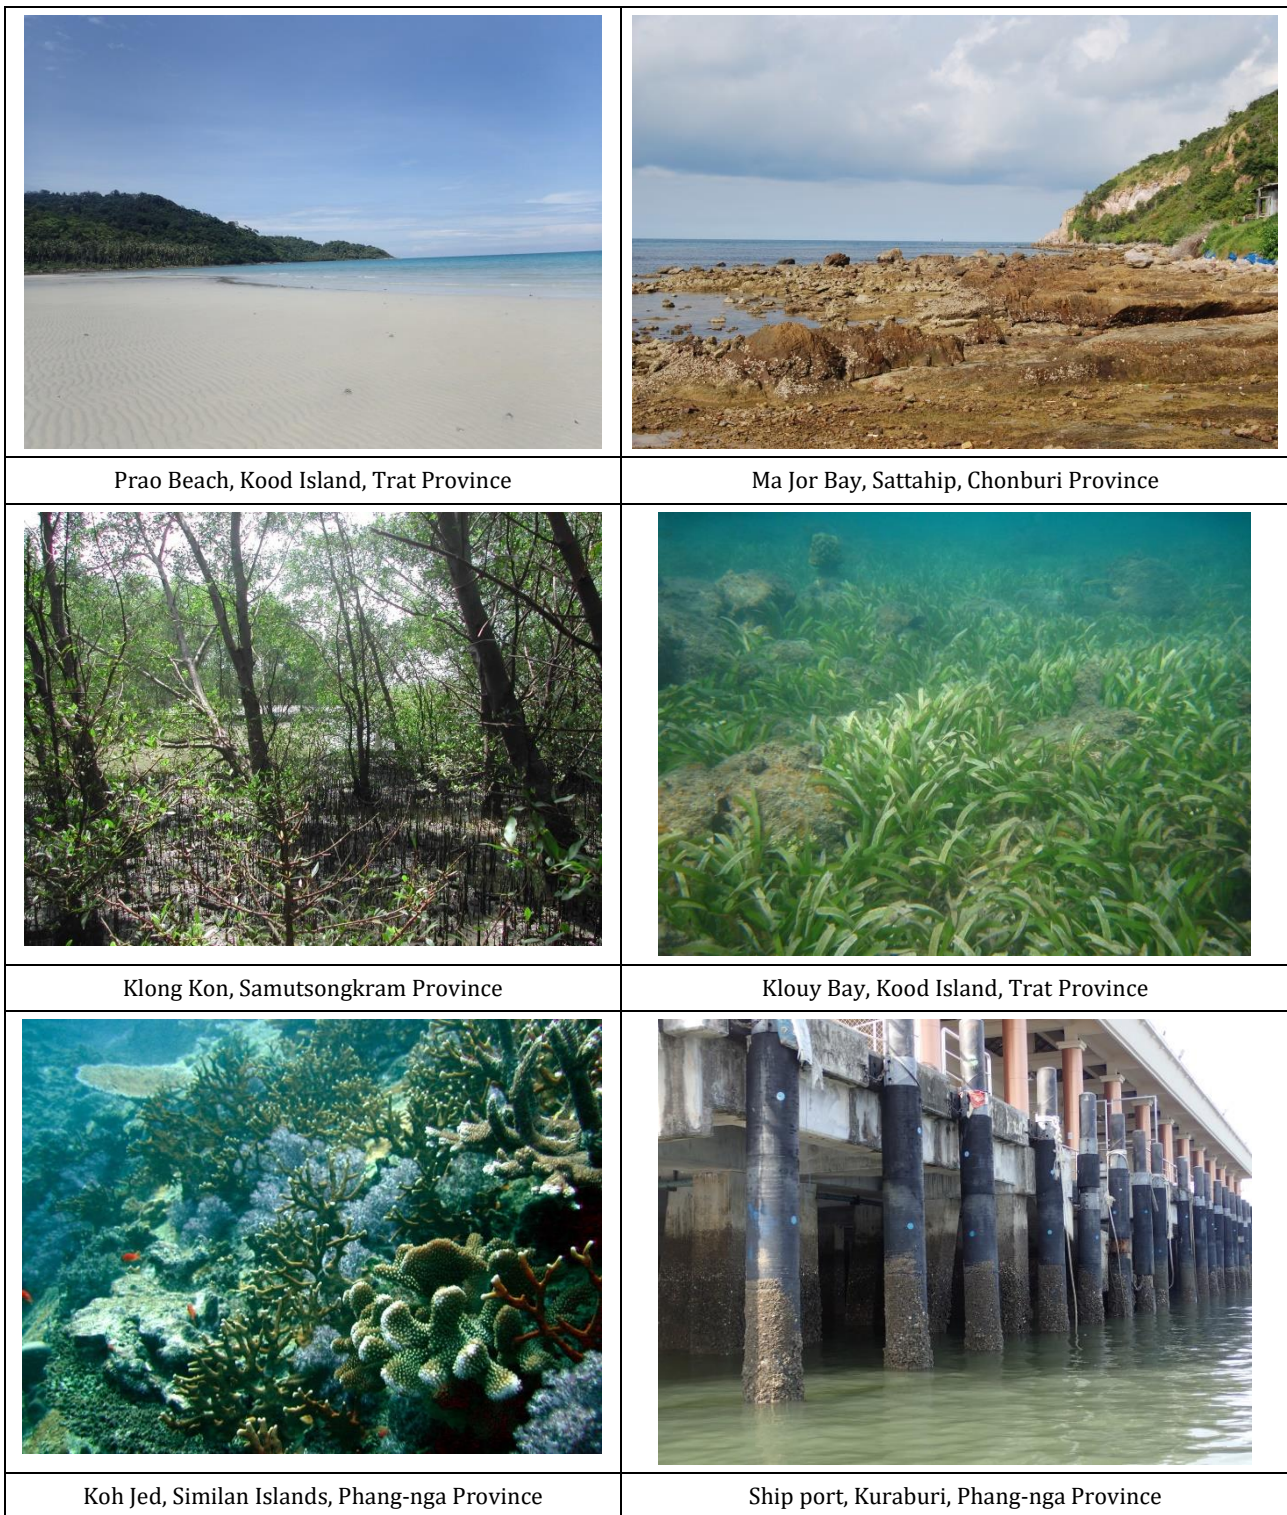

Fig. 2. The most common marine habitats in Thailand (Photographs by: Kitithorn Sanpanich).

A key difference between the two coasts is that the Gulf of Thailand is shallow, with a mean depth of 45 m and a maximum of 80 m. The bottom is largely mud. The Upper Gulf is a square-shaped area at the northern end, with four major rivers emptying into it. The Chao Phraya River is the largest, with an annual average flow of 13,220 km<sup>3</sup>. The Lower Gulf has two ridges on its southern margin that restrict water flow into and out of the South China Sea (Wattayakorn, 2006). The Gulf is influenced by the southwest monsoon from May to September and the northeast monsoon from October to February (Phongsuwan et al., 2013).

In contrast, there is a narrow continental shelf on the Andaman coast, up to 100 km wide, that gives way to a steep continental slope that reaches a depth of up to 2,000 m. Intertidal rocky shores and sand beaches are found on both coasts.

There is an estimated 153 km<sup>2</sup> of coral reefs in Thailand, with three reef types occurring: coral communities with no true reef structure; developing fringing reefs; and early formation of fringing reefs (Yeemin et al., 2001). In the Andaman Sea, coral reefs usually occur as fringes in clear water on the eastern sides of islands where they are sheltered from the southwest monsoon. In the eastern Gulf of Thailand, coral reefs are most common on the east and north coasts of islands where they are sheltered from the southwest monsoon. The northeast monsoon is more influential in the western Gulf, and reefs there are most common on the west and south coasts. Rocky shores dominate on the windward side of most islands (Phongsuwan et al., 2013).

As with many other parts of the world, Thai coral reefs have been heavily stressed by human activity, which includes direct destruction of reefs, and indirect effects such as pollution and nutrient enrichment. The effects of tourism, with trampling and inadvertent destruction of fragile reef structures, are particularly evident in Thailand. There have been several severe bleaching events, with a substantial bleaching occurring in 2010. Several outbreaks of the crown of thorns starfish have occurred on reefs in the Andaman Sea, particularly in the 1980s. The Indian Ocean tsunami on 26 December 2004 significantly affected coral reefs on the Andaman coast; while about 40% of surveyed reefs had no visible damage, 47% had low-to-moderate impacts and 13% were severely damaged. However, surveys taken two years after the tsunami showed a slightly higher coverage of live coral than surveys two years before the tsunami (Phongsuwan et al., 2013).

Extensive, diverse, and biologically productive (74 known mangrove species) mangrove forests are a key intertidal habitat in Thailand. Mangroves are common on the muddy tidal flats at river mouths. There are extensive mangroves on the Andaman coast, particularly in Phang Nga province, which has 18.5% of the total mangrove area of Thailand. Mangroves are common along the east coast of the Gulf of Thailand and along the Chao Phraya River delta near Bangkok. The mangrove forests often have two layers. The upper storey grows to a height of 20 m or more, with large trees of Rhizophora, Bruguiera, Heritiera and Xylocarpus. Common understory species are in the genera Bruguiera and Ceriops. The palm Nypa fruticans is common along the edges of intertidal creeks (Pumijumnong, 2014).

There has been a considerable loss of mangroves in Thailand for a variety of reasons, including logging, pollution, etc. The primary cause of losses is the removal of mangroves to create space for shrimp farms. Levees are built to a height of 1–1.5 m to increase the water volume available for the shrimp. Unfortunately, the ponds become unviable after about five years and are abandoned. The levees change water flow patterns and restrict recolonisation of the ponds by mangroves, even if they are actively planted. There were about 320,000 ha of mangroves in Thailand in 1975, but this was halved by 1996. Conservation and rehabilitation increased the mangrove area to about 240,000 ha by 2004 (Pumijumnong, 2014).

Seagrass habitats in Thailand have been classified into three categories: mangrove-associated beds, shallow sandy-bottom beds and coral reef-associated beds (UNEP et al., 2005). There are 12 species of seagrasses in Thailand in the genera Halophila, Cymodocea, Halodule, Enhalus, Thalassia, Syringodium and Ruppia. 11 species have been recorded from both coasts; Ruppia maritima is known only from the Gulf of Thailand. The area of seagrasses is much larger and denser on the Andaman coast (9,448 ha) than in the Gulf of Thailand (5,489 ha) (Adulyanukosol & Poovachiranon, 2007). There is a distinct seasonality of seagrasses in Thailand. For example, Khogkhaoa et al. (2017) studied the spatial distribution of seagrasses and their biomass in relation to a number of physical factors near the mouth of the Trang River on the Andaman Coast. 10 species with a total area of 61 km<sup>2</sup> were found during the dry season, nearly half (29 km<sup>2</sup>) of which was Halophila decipiens. The other common species were Enhalus acoroides and Halophila ovalis. Only eight species with a total area of 24 km<sup>2</sup> were found in the rainy season. The most important limiting factors were water depth and light intensity.

The marine algal flora is diverse, with about 326 species having been recorded: 98 chlorophytes, 56 phaeophytes and 172 rhodophytes. The number of blue green algae has not been determined (Coppejans et al., 2010, 2017). Marine algae are abundant in a wide range of shallow water habitats, including rocky shores and artificial hard surfaces, and as epiphytes on seagrasses and mangroves.

HISTORY OF MOLLUSC EXPLORATION IN THAILAND

According to Hylleberg (2013), the first extensive sampling of benthic species in the Gulf of Thailand was undertaken in early 1900 by the Danish Expedition to Siam, funded by the Danish government and the Carlsberg Foundation. There were only two scientists, the botanist Johs Schmidt and the echinoderm specialist Theodor Mortensen. Koh Chang Island in the eastern Gulf of Thailand was used as a base with Mortensen undertaking boat trips of up to a week from Koh Chang for dredging and intertidal collecting. Unfortunately, with the large number of rivers in the region, the bottom was predominately mud and Mortensen had considerable difficulty in locating suitable habitats for dredging. Specimens collected were deposited in the Zoological Museum, Copenhagen. Bergh (1902) published on opisthobranchs and Lynge (1909) reported on bivalve molluscs collected during the expedition.

Three additional Thai–Danish expeditions to Thailand were undertaken in the following decades, but these were primarily botanical. The Fifth Thai–Danish Expedition in January to March 1966 was originally conceived as a botanical expedition, but in 1961, Germany had initiated successful trawl fisheries in the Gulf of Thailand. Therefore, the Thai Department of Fisheries was interested in exploring the fisheries resources of the Andaman coast and made their new research vessel M/S DHANARAJATA available for the expedition. The survey evolved into a combined terrestrial botanical and marine biological expedition that included 15 Thai scientists and students from the departments of Fisheries and Agriculture in Chulalongkorn University, and four Danish scientists and representatives from the UNESCO office in Singapore, Singapore Botanic Gardens and the Allan Hancock Foundation in California. The eminent Danish scientist Gunnar Thorson led the marine biological component of the expedition. Its goals were: 1) research work on fish-food animals on sediment bottoms from a quantitative point of view; 2) training of groups of young Thai marine biologists; and 3) the creation of a broad reference collection of marine fauna for use by the Thai Marine Fisheries Laboratory in the future education of marine and fishery biologists (Seidenfaden et al., 1968).

A key result of the expedition was the development of a concept for the creation of the Phuket Marine Biological Center. The Thai–Danish team examined 10 sites on Phuket Island for the possible construction of a marine laboratory. The variety of habitats that could be reached by boat or vehicle within 30 minutes, including coral reefs, rocky shores, open and sheltered sandy beaches and mangroves, led to the present site of PMBC being chosen. An agreement for the development of PMBC was signed by the Royal Thai and Danish governments in October 1968 (Seidenfaden et al., 1968).

The Thai government paid for the buildings and other infrastructure while the Danish contribution was scientific equipment, staff training, and expert assistance. Jørgen Hylleberg was appointed as the Danish Advisor, a role that he fulfilled from 1979 to 1994. Hylleberg then became project director for the new Tropical Marine Mollusc Programme (TMMP) and continued to advise PMBC until TMMP funding was ended by the Danish International Development Agency (DANIDA) in 2004 (Hylleberg, 2013).

The creation of PMBC opened a new era in Thai marine research that was primarily focused on discovering the biodiversity of marine and estuarine biota on the Andaman coast; much of the work was on molluscs. A new building was opened in 1983 to house the rapidly growing Reference Collection. PMBC started two journals, the Research Bulletin and Special Publications, both of which contain a significant number of papers on molluscs. The two series provided venues for PMBC and other scientists, from both Thailand and overseas, to publish scientific information on the Thai marine environment. The journals are sent in exchange for publications from other national and international institutions, thus enhancing the PMBC library (Hylleberg, 2013).

Facilitating the education of young scientists has been a key PMBC outcome. A number of field courses have been presented at PMBC and PMBC staff have been able to participate in overseas opportunities. Particularly successful has been the ability of Thai scientists to obtain advanced degrees in Denmark. Mollusc workers include Charatsee Aungtonya, Anuwat Nateewathana and Vararin Vongpanich with MSc degrees from the University of Aarhus; Anuwat Nateewathana continued on to get a PhD from the same university. Charatsee Aungtonya obtained a PhD at the University of Copenhagen. The transfer of students worked both ways, with students from the University of Aarhus undertaking their field studies at PMBC. The mollusc workers among these include Michael Bech, Britt Gribsholt and Peter Middlefart (Hylleberg, 2013).

The TMMP, coordinated by Jørgen Hylleberg, was established in 1991 as a joint research activity between Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries. Annual workshops were held, which allowed participants to present papers and interact with other participants in a week-long conference, then to undertake field excursions. Denmark, India and Thailand participated in the first year of the TMMP. The first conference was devoted to the possible aquaculture of the large Murex ramosus. Indonesia joined in 1992. Over time the number of participants and the range of scientific topics grew rapidly. The quantity of biodiversity information presented increased so much that from 1997 onwards an entire volume of the workshop proceedings was devoted to biodiversity studies. Each annual workshop was held in a different Southeast Asian country, increasing the ability of scientists in the region to participate. The opportunity to meet at a workshop and exchange scientific information led to numerous cooperative projects among the participants. By the time the programme was terminated in 2004, the TMMP had published 11 sets of proceedings and two monographs. Mollusc researchers from 57 institutions in 22 countries had participated in the various workshops. Research presented concentrated on the Indian Ocean and South China Sea in Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, India and Indonesia. A number of mollusc experts from other Asian countries, Europe, South Africa, United States and Australia also participated in the TMMP, considerably broadening the TMMP outlook (Hylleberg, 2013).

An ambitious project, Biodiversity of the Andaman Sea Shelf (BIOSHSELF), was undertaken from 1996 to 2000 on the Andaman coast of Thailand to survey marine biodiversity along the entire Thai coastline from the Myanmar border in the north to Malaysia in the south. Extensive benthic surveys were made using a variety of grabbing and trawling techniques down to 1,000 m and open water species to deeper depths. A total of 98 stations were conducted on 12 transects between 40 and 900 m, and an additional 16 stations in the Thai EEZ. 19 nearshore stations were made (Aungtonya et al., 2000; Tendal et al., 2014). Specimens collected were deposited in the PMBC Reference Collection. Extensive reports were compiled on the crustaceans (Bruce et al., 2002) and polychaetes (Eibye-Jacobsen, 2002), but only limited information on molluscs was published: Schwabe (2006) on chitons and Jensen (2007) on opisthobranchs.

In addition to the Danish work in Thailand cited above, there have been a number of major oceanographic expeditions that have worked in Thai waters for at least part of their extensive voyages. Again, Danes played a leading role. The Thai component of these expeditions was summarised by Jensen & Knudsen (2001). The DANA circumnavigated the world from 1928 to 1930. The expedition was focused on plankton, fish and oceanography. It was in Thai waters in April and May 1929. The expedition was led by the Danish scientists Johs Schmidt and Anton Bruun. The GALATHEA expedition, undertaken from 1950 to 1952, was led again by Anton Bruun. It worked in the Gulf of Thailand in June 1951. Unfortunately, the focus of the expedition was on the deep sea, so the Gulf of Thailand molluscs were not included. The Naga Expedition, also led by Anton Bruun, worked in Thailand in 1959. Included among the scientists was the prominent malacologist Jørgen Knudsen.

More recently, a workshop on the systematics, anatomy and natural history of shallow water marine bivalves was held in Kungkrabaen, Chanthaburi Province, in August and September 2005 (Bieler et al., 2008a). The primary goal was to increase scientific knowledge of marine bivalves in the eastern Gulf of Thailand, but associated work was also undertaken on gastropods. Thai and international scientists conducted field studies in Kungkrabaen for two weeks, then returned to their home institutions to complete the associated laboratory studies and write their papers describing the results. A special volume of the Raffles Bulletin of Zoology contains the workshop results in 17 papers (Bieler et al., 2008b).

Since the completion of the Kungkrabaen workshop, primary development of scientific information on Thai marine molluscs has resulted from short-term studies of particular areas such as marine parks. Most of the work has been undertaken by Kitithorn Sanpanich of Burapha University and Teerapong Duangdee of Kasetsart University.

OVERVIEW OF SPECIES RECORDED

The present compilation presents records of 3,359 marine and estuarine species in Thailand. 137 species are rejected or considered dubious: 105 on geographic grounds because the species does not occur in the Southeast Asian marine biogeographic region (Appendix 1); 26 on a taxonomic basis; four for being fossils; and two for being freshwater species. The remaining 3,222 species (Table 1; Fig. 3) are considered valid by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) and other sources. The compilation provides an up-to-date understanding of our knowledge of the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand, and a basis for future research on the phylum in Thailand. However, individual records should be treated with scepticism as most cannot be verified by examination of the original specimens and compared with other material. The PMBC collections are an exception as they are available, as are the collections at Kasetsart University and THNHM.

Fig. 3. Examples of marine mollusc species recorded in Thailand (Photographs by: Kitithorn Sanpanich).

The 3,222 species recorded from Thailand are obviously an incomplete representation of the phylum in Thailand. Most of the species recorded are gastropods (1,963) and bivalves (1,116) (Table 1), but even in these groups, there are undoubtedly many species that have yet to be recorded. Because of their economic importance, cephalopods are the best-studied group in the country; we found literature references to 129 species. However, there are still more species to be recorded. Polyplacophorans (7) and scaphopods (7) are poorly studied; no records were encountered of monoplacophorans or aplacophorans.

INTRODUCED SPECIES OF MARINE AND ESTUARINE MOLLUSCS

There is an increasing awareness worldwide of the numbers of marine species being introduced from one part of the oceans to another. For example, over 250 species are known to have been introduced into Australia (NIMPIS, 2017). Most of these species are apparently innocuous, causing no harm in their new environment. However, a small proportion become invasive marine species (IMS) that can cause considerable environmental and economic damage by changing ecosystems, outcompeting native species, threatening fisheries and aquaculture, introducing diseases and interfering with industrial facilities (Johnson & Chapman, 2007; Molnar et al., 2008; Wells et al., 2009; Crowe & Frid, 2015). Of the 250 species introduced into Australian waters, only about a dozen are regarded as IMS (NIMPCG, 2009a, 2009b; NIMPIS, 2017).

There has been no comprehensive examination of introduced marine and estuarine species in Thailand. Understanding the Thai situation is made more difficult because of the many centuries that wooden boats were used to transport goods and people within Southeast Asia and beyond. Species may have been introduced hundreds of years ago that now appear to be native. The problem has been exacerbated in recent decades by the globalisation of shipping, which allows vessels to rapidly move from one area of the world's oceans to another.

Thailand has two major ports that can serve as primary recipient areas for introduced marine species. Both are in the inner Gulf of Thailand. Laem Chabang is the larger. It handled 13,313 vessels in 2017 and has extensive support facilities such as drydocks and a floating drydock (LCP, 2018). In fiscal year 2016, Bangkok Port handled 3,067 vessels with 21 million tonnes of cargo (PAT, 2020). There are also other ports that handle smaller numbers of international vessels.

In a survey of introduced marine species in Southeast Asia, Chavanich et al. (2010a) recorded only seven introduced species in Thailand, but emphasised that there has been no survey conducted in the country. The low number known from Thailand is probably a reflection of the lack of study, but also may reflect a relatively low number of introductions.

Only one of the seven species reported in Thailand by Chavanich et al. (2010a) was a mollusc, the false mussel Mytilopsis sallei (Récluz, 1849) (reported as Mytilopsis adamsi Morrison, 1946), which has been recorded in the Songkla Lakes in the south of the country (Wangkulangkul & Lheknim, 2008; Wangkulangkul, 2018). Mytilopsis sallei has been reported in numerous Asian countries, including India (Kalyanasundaram, 1975), Japan (Habe, 1980; Furuse & Hasegawa, 1984), Hong Kong (Morton, 1980, 1989; Huang & Morton, 1983), Taiwan (Chang, 1985), Singapore (Tan & Morton, 2008) and China (Cai et al., 2014). Wangkulangkul (2018) recently surveyed the population of Mytilopsis sallei in the Songkla Lakes and found the species to be well established. However, it is most abundant in the rivers flowing into the lake where the water is about 15 parts per thousand (ppt). It is much less common in the higher-salinity parts of the lakes system. The fact that Mytilopsis sallei became established in Songkla Lakes emphasises the point that concern about IMS in Thailand is not restricted to the major ports of Bangkok and Laem Chabang. Sanpanich & Wells (2019) recently reported that the species has now been found in the inner Gulf of Thailand, again in lower-salinity areas.

Chavanich et al. (2010a) did not record the Central American mussel Mytella strigata (Hanley, 1843) (previously known as Mytella charruana [d'Orbigny, 1842]) in any Southeast Asian country. However, it has recently become invasive in the Philippines (Rice et al., 2016; Mediodia et al., 2017; Vallejo, 2017), Singapore (Lim et al., 2018) and India (Jayachandran et al., 2019). Sanpanich & Wells (2019) surveyed the inner Gulf of Thailand and found the species to be widespread, with densities of up to 40,000 m<sup>-2</sup>. In Singapore, Lim et al. (2018) expressed concern that the species might be outcompeting the economically important Asian green mussel, Perna viridis (Linnaeus, 1758), a concern shared for the Thailand populations by Sanpanich & Wells (2019). Sanpanich & Wells (2019) reported anecdotal information that Perna viridis is being grown in aquaculture farms in the Phuket area on the Andaman coast. The species is uncommon in the region, and seed stock are being transferred from Sri Racha on the Gulf of Thailand to Phuket, providing a direct mechanism for the possible introduction of Mytella strigata to the Andaman coast.

Two other bivalve species have been introduced to Asia that should be mentioned; neither has yet been recorded in Thailand. The mussel Brachidontes striatulus (Hanley, 1843) was introduced to Singapore over a decade ago.

Densities of up to 75 per 100 cm<sup>2</sup> were found in salinities ranging from 12 to 20 ppt (Morton & Tan, 2006). The Australian mussel Xenostrobus securis (Lamarck, 1819) has been introduced to European waters and also Japan (Kohama et al., 2001; Iwasaki & Yamamoto, 2014) and Hong Kong (Morton & Leung, 2015).

Brachidontes pharaonis (Fischer, 1870) is a small mytilid mussel whose native range is the western Indian Ocean and Red Sea. However, in 1876, just seven years after the Suez Canal was opened, the species was found at Port Said on the Mediterranean coast of Egypt (Dogan et al., 2007). Brachidontes pharaonis was first discovered along the Israeli coast in 1937, and was still rare in the early 1970s. However, a survey 30 years later found dense populations on rocks, where it was the dominant species (Galil, 2000). It has become invasive in many parts of the Mediterranean (Terranova et al., 2006; Cilia & Deidun, 2012). The taxonomy of the species has been confused by the close resemblance of the shells of Brachidontes pharaonis to those of the Indo-Pacific Brachidontes variabilis (Krauss, 1848). Lamy (1936) and Huber (2010) considered the two to be conspecific and recognised the proper name as Brachidontes pharaonis. This was followed in Thailand by Swennen et al. (2001) and Nabhitabhata (2009) (see Appendix 1). Brachidontes variabilis has also been reported in Thailand by Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009) and BEDO (2017b). However, GBIF (2019) regards the two as separate species and Brachidontes variabilis as the native Thai species.

Two of the species in Appendix 1 warrant further consideration for possibly occurring in Thailand. The eastern American mud snail Tritia obsoleta (Say, 1822) has been introduced into California, where it is very abundant in San Francisco Bay. It was possibly introduced in association with the transplantation of oysters for aquaculture (Carlton, 1992; GISD, 2015a). There is no evidence of Tritia obsoleta in Thailand, and it is likely to have been misidentified.

The European oyster Ostrea edulis (Linnaeus, 1758) has been introduced into a number of countries, including: Australia, Canada, Fiji, Israel, Japan, Mauritius, Namibia, New Zealand, South Africa, Tonga and the United States (Carlton, 1992; GISD, 2015b). It has been reported from Thailand by Suvatti (1937, 1938) and Duangdee et al. (2011) (Appendix 1), but was not included by Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010) in their revision of Thai oysters. The species has been reported from southwestern Australia using genetic techniques (Morton et al., 2003). A genetic analysis would be required to demonstrate Ostrea edulis is present in Thailand.

FISHERIES IMPORTANCE OF THAI MOLLUSCS

Thailand is one of the largest producers of seafood products in the world. It is an important industry for the country. Over 30 species of molluscs, predominately cephalopods, are important in the commercial catch. The production can be divided into wild-caught fisheries and aquaculture.

Derrick et al. (2017) reported that Thai catches from Thailand's EEZ increased from approximately 400,000 tonnes in 1950 to 2.6 million tonnes in 1987. The catch then declined to 1.7 million tonnes in 2014. However, Derrick et al. (2017) analysed the catch statistics and concluded that because of under reporting the actual catch may have been three times greater.

A survey in 2000 reported that 58,119 fishing boats were in use in Thailand. Most (80%) were small local boats; many were at or near the subsistence level. 20% of the boats were >5 tonnes and capable of undertaking voyages ranging upwards from a full day to several weeks. About 60% of the catch was made in Thai waters (41% from the Gulf of Thailand and 19% from the Andaman Sea). The total catch in 2007 was 2.2 million tonnes valued at 63 billion Baht (about USD $2 billion). Cephalopods contributed 6% of the total 2007 fisheries catch, while other molluscs were 1% (FAO, 2019). Not included in this survey was hand collecting along the shoreline, much of which was for molluscs, particularly bivalves.

Ngamprasertkit (2018) reported that wild-caught squid and cuttlefish in 2017 were worth USD $345 million. Other molluscs added another USD $374 million. The total wild catch in 2015 was 1.32 million metric tonnes, with squid contributing 91,000 tonnes and other molluscs 16,700 tonnes. Squids, cuttlefishes and octopuses are all commercially exploited in Thailand. The key squid are four species of Loligo, Loliolus sumatrensis and Sepioteuthis lessoniana. The most important cuttlefish are five species of Sepia and Sepiella inermis. The dominant octopus are Amphioctopus membranaceus, A. aegina and Cistopus indicus (FAO, 2019). There are also small wild-caught fisheries for the short-necked clam Paratapes undulatus, scallops such as Amusium pleuronectes, and the razor clam Solen strictus (Chalermwat et al., 2003).

Thai aquaculture is dominated by shrimp production, which constitutes over 90% of the total value, which was USD $1.75 billion in 2007. Molluscan aquaculture in that year totalled 362,800 tonnes, 76% of which was the Asian green mussel (Perna viridis) (FAO, 2019). The green mussel has been cultured in Thailand for over 60 years using three methods: bamboo poles, rope culture and raft culture (Keawtawee et al., 2018). Chalermwat et al. (2003) divided Thai molluscan aquaculture into two methods: species produced through traditional aquaculture techniques without associated hatcheries and species obtaining stock from hatcheries.

Yang et al. (2019) reported that Thai aquaculture production is among that of the top 10 nations worldwide, with 1.45% of global production. In 2012, Thai molluscan aquaculture totalled 205,192 metric tonnes. The most important species were: green mussels (Perna viridis), 107,229 tonnes; blood cockles (Anadara granosa), 71,450 tonnes; oysters (Crassostrea spp.), 26,508 tonnes; European flat oysters (Ostrea edulis), 4 tonnes; and abalone (Haliotis spp.), 5 tonnes. Small quantities of horse mussels (Modiolus spp.) were also grown but not reported (Yang et al., 2019). According to Chalermwat et al. (2003), the key species of oysters are Saccostrea cucullata, Crassostrea belcheri and Crassostrea iredalei.

Ngamprasertkit (2018) reported that total marine aquaculture in Thailand in 2017 was 508,700 tonnes. The dominant molluscs in that year were Asian green mussels (Perna viridis) at 115,500 tonnes, blood cockles (Anadara granosa) at 59,000 tonnes, and oysters at 19,900 tonnes. Green mussels and blood cockles typically constitute over 80% of the total cultured shellfish harvest by weight, but the relatively small oyster harvest is much more valuable and provides almost 50% of the total annual farmed shellfish crop value (Chalermwat et al., 2003).

The horse mussel Arcuatula arcuatula is produced in small quantities for animal feed and, at the time of the report, aquaculture for the abalone Haliotis asinina and the spotted babylon Babylonia areolata were being developed (Keawtawee et al., 2018).

COMPARISON OF THE MOLLUSCS OF THE GULF OF THAILAND AND THE ANDAMAN SEA

The total number of species recorded from the Gulf of Thailand (2,494) was slightly more than the 2,400 recorded from the Andaman Sea. 61 species have been recorded from Thailand without either coastline being specified. About 44% of the species (1,524) have been recorded from both coastlines, demonstrating a considerable overlap of widespread Indo-Pacific species. The high degree of overlap in mollusc species found on the two coasts is consistent with the finding of Wells (2002), who recorded a very high overlap between the molluscs of the eastern Indian Ocean and the western Pacific Ocean. Further collecting in Thailand would be expected to increase the number of species in common on the two coasts as many species have been recorded in only one or two papers.

The two Thai coastlines are very different, particularly in the absence of deep water in the Gulf of Thailand. Collecting on the Andaman coast appears to have been more extensive through the long-term work of PMBC. On the other hand, there are more institutions and diffuse collecting efforts in the Gulf of Thailand. As there is no way of quantifying collecting effort, it is uncertain whether molluscan biodiversity in the two regions is similar. Because of their economic importance, cephalopods have been the most thoroughly studied class. 94 species have been recorded from the Gulf of Thailand and 106 from the Andaman coast (Table 1), suggesting the latter may have a slightly greater biodiversity.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FUTURE RESEARCH

The lack of detailed information on the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand prevents an accurate estimation of the number of species in the country, or on either of its coasts. This lack of basic biodiversity information is the most pressing research requirement for our understanding of Thai marine and estuarine molluscs. Fortunately, there has been a great deal of survey work undertaken in recent decades. We have highlighted above studies that have been undertaken but where the molluscs have not been published, such as the original Thai–Danish expedition in 1900, the Fifth Expedition in 1966, and the 1996–2000 BIOSHELF expedition. Specimens from these studies are deposited either in PMBC or the Statens Naturhistoriske Museum, Copenhagen, Denmark. Identification and publication of the materials in these collections would contribute substantially to our knowledge of Thai marine molluscs in a cost-effective manner.

Once this material is collated and published, additional field surveys could be undertaken to further document the group in Thailand. The Kungkrabaen workshop (Bieler et al., 2008a) and similar workshops in Singapore (e.g., Tan & Goh, 2016) and Australia (e.g., Wells et al., 2003) provide a format for undertaking such surveys, and PMBC provides a natural location for a workshop. The format is simple. A small local organising committee selects the venue and organises facilities. Accommodation and meals could be provided either at PMBC or in a nearby venue; these would need to be inexpensive. Basic laboratory facilities, vehicles, boats, sampling equipment, research permits, etc. would be provided by PMBC. International and Thai scientists would be invited to participate in the workshop. The scientists would concentrate on taxonomy, though basic field ecology and related subjects could also be researched. Thai graduate students could be selected to work with the team at the field location. The field workshop would be held for about 18 days and be targeted to coincide with two spring low tide periods. The organising committee would be responsible for all logistical aspects. Once the venue and timing have been organised, the international researchers can be invited.

The international researchers would be expected to arrange their own transport to the site and contribute to the cost of the workshop through a registration fee that would cover the costs of accommodation, meals and some of the other workshop expenses. In return, the international researchers would be afforded the opportunity to conduct research in their area of expertise in an overseas location with local scientists, and have all logistical aspects organised for them, including the necessary collecting and export permits. Holotypes and a selection of paratypes of any new species described and representative samples of species collected would be deposited in PMBC. If sufficient paratypes and other specimens are available, they could be deposited in THNHM and the taxonomist's home institution. Two years should be allowed for the international scientists to obtain funding for their participation.

All participants would be expected to publish one or more papers reporting their results in a joint volume, such as the PMBC Special Publication series. Alternatively, papers could be published in international journals and cite the workshop as part of a numbered series. Three years should be allowed for completion of laboratory studies, writing up of papers, and the reviewing process. Thus, the workshop would be a five-year project. PMBC is an obvious location for a workshop, but there are a number of other possible venues in Thailand. Grant support can be sought to lower the cost to participants and enhance the workshop and/or publication.

It should be noted that the workshop format would work equally well for other taxa, either as independent workshops or as multidisciplinary surveys.

Much of the impetus for the Fifth Thai–Danish Expedition 1966 was a requirement by the Thai Department of Fisheries to understand the food chains that support commercially valuable fisheries (Seidenfaden et al., 1968). As molluscs are the most diverse phylum in the marine environment and many species are ecologically and/or economically important, a better understanding of the biodiversity and distribution of molluscs in Thailand is required to support fisheries science.

- Lepiroides phuketi* (Lützen & Nielsen, 2005). Reported as: Galeomma phuketi Lützen & Nielsen (2005). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013).
- Nudiscintilla glabra* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Pseudogaleomma japonica* (A. Adams, 1862). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Taylor et al. (2007), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla agilis* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013).

- Scintilla candida* Deshayes, 1855. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009), Huber (2015).
- Scintilla cuvieri* Deshayes, 1856. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla hyalina* Deshayes, 1855. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Scintilla hydatina* Deshayes, 1855. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Scintilla imperatoris* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla longitentaculata* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla macrodactylus* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Huber (2015), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla minor* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla mortoni* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla nitidella* Habe, 1962. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla ovalis* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) lists this as a temporary name as it is a junior homonym of Scintilla ovalis Turton, 1932.
- Scintilla papillosa* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla philippinensis* Deshayes, 1855. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla sannio* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla siamense* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla unicornia* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla verrucosa* Lützen & Nielsen, 2005. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintilla violescens* Kuroda & Habe, 1961. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Huber (2015), BEDO (2017a).
- Scintillula elongata* (Lyngø, 1909). Reported as: Erycina elongata; and Marikella elongata (Lyngø, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Gemert (2003), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Scintillula ovulina* Deshayes, 1856. Reported as: Scintilla ovulina Deshayes, 1856. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Huber (2015), BEDO (2017a).
- Varotoga anomala* (Deshayes, 1856). Reported as: Scintilla anomala Deshayes, 1856. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a).

Family Lasaeidae

- Borniola venusta* (Lyngø, 1909). Reported as: Montacuta venusta Lyngø, 1909; and Pseudopythina venusta (Lyngø, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Borniopsis ariakensis* Habe, 1959. Reported as: Pseudopythina ariakensis Habe, 1959. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Callomysia costata* (Lyngø, 1909). Reported as: Montacuta costata Lyngø, 1909; and Mysella costata (Lyngø, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Callomysia matsuii* Habe, 1951. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Curvemysella paula* (A. Adams, 1856). Also reported as: Montacuta (Tellimya) paula A. Adams, 1856. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Scott (1995), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), GBIF (2019a).
- Kellia bullula* (Deshayes, 1856). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Huber (2015).
- Kellia cycladiformis* (Deshayes, 1839). Reported as: Erycina cycladiformis Deshayes, 1839. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Kellia laperousii* Deshayes, 1839. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Kellia porculus* Pilsbry, 1904. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Kellia rosea* (Lyngø, 1909). Reported as: Erycina rosea. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Kellia rotunda* (Deshayes, 1856). Reported as: Erycina rotunda Deshayes, 1839. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).

- Kellia vitrina* (Lyngé, 1909). Reported as: Erycina vitrine. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009). Reported as a taxon inquirendum by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).
- Kellya lilium* Lyngé, 1909. Reported as: Erycina lilium; and Mysella lilium (Lyngé, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Scott (1995), Nabhitabhata (2009). Reported as a taxon inquirendum by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).
- Kellya lineata* (Lyngé, 1909). Reported as: Erycina lineata (Lyngé, 1909); and Erycina lineate (Lyngé, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009). Reported as a taxon inquirendum by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).
- Koreamia arcuata* (A. Adams, 1856). Reported as: Curvemysella arcuata (Adams, 1856). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002).
- Koreamia sibogai* (Prashad, 1932). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a).
- Kurtiella triangularis* (R. B. Watson, 1897). Reported as: Montacuta (Tellimya) triangularis A. Adams, 1856. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Lasaea undulata* (A. A. Gould, 1861). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kurozumi et al. (1989).
- Montacutona japonica* (Yokoyama, 1922). Reported as: Montacuta (Tellimya) japonica A. Adams, 1862. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Montacutona mutsuwaensis* (Yamamoto & Habe, 1959). Reported as: Mysella mutsuwaensis (Yamamoto & Habe, 1959). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Montacutona rudis* (Lyngé, 1909). Reported as: Mysella rudis (Lyngé, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Montacutona variabilis* (Lyngé, 1909). Reported as: Montacuta (Tellimya) variabilis Lyngé, 1909; and Mysella variabilis (Lyngé, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), Huber (2015).
- Nipponomysella subtruncata* (Yokoyama, 1922). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Negri et al. (2014).
- ? Radobornia bryani* (Pilsbry, 1921). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).

Order Gastrochaenida

Superfamily Gastrochaenoidea

Family Gastrochaenidae

- Cucurbitula cymbium* (Spengler, 1783). Also reported as: Gastrochaena cymbium (Spengler, 1783). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Swennen et al. (2001), ONEP (2007), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011).
- Dufoichaena dentifera* (Dufo, 1840). Reported as: Gastrochaena dentifera Dufo, 1840. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Scott (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Dufoichaena pexiphora* (Sturany, 1899). Reported as: Gastrochaena cf. pexiphora Sturany, 1899. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011).
- Gastrochaena carteri* Nielsen, 1906. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Printrakoon et al. (2016), BEDO (2017a).
- Gastrochaena cuneiformis* Spengler, 1783. Reported as: Gastrochaena gigantea Deshayes, 1830. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nielsen (1976a), Tantanasiriwong (1979), Morris & Purchon (1981), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Kurozumi et al. (1989), Bussarawit (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Robba et al. (2002), Taylor et al. (2007), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009), Sanpanich (2011), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Printrakoon et al. (2016), BEDO (2017a).
- Lamychaena weinkauffi* (Sturany, 1899). Reported as: Gastrochaena inaequistriata Jousseume in Lamy, 1923. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Spengleria mytiloides* (Lamarck, 1818). Reported as: Gastrochaena mytiloides Lamarck, 1818; and Spengleria plicatilis (Deshayes, 1855). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kurozumi et al. (1989), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009), Sanpanich (2011), BEDO (2017a).
- Spenglerichaena apertissima* (Deshayes, 1855). Reported as: Spengleria apertissima (Deshayes, 1855). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Huber (2010), BEDO (2017a).

Order Lucinida

Superfamily Lucinoidea

Family Lucinidae

- Austriella corrugata* (Deshayes, 1843). Also reported as: Eamesiella corrugata (Deshayes, 1843); Pseudomiltha corrugata (Deshayes, 1843); and Eamisiella philippinarum (Hanley). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Subba Rao & Dey (2000), Robba et al. (2002), Glover & Taylor (2016), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Cardiolucina eucosmia* (Dall, 1901). Reported as: Lucina (Phacoides) pisum Reeve, 1850. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Cardiolucina maccasari* (Prashad, 1932). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Swennen et al. (2001), Meyer et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Glover & Taylor (2016), BEDO (2017a).
- Cardiolucina rugosa* (Hedley, 1909). Reported as: Lucina (Phacoides) seminula Gould, 1861. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Cardiolucina semperiana* (Issel, 1869). Also reported as: Parvilucina (Bellucina) semperiana (Issel, 1869). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), GBIF (2019b).
- Cavatidens bullula* (Reeve, 1850). Reported as: Anodontia bullula (Reeve, 1850); and Lucina (Thyasira) bullula Reeve, 1850. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Robba et al. (2004), Taylor et al. (2007), Meyer et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Chavania striata* (Tokunaga, 1906). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Taylor & Glover (2001), Gemert (2003), GBIF (2019b).
- Codakia interrupta* (Lamarck, 1816). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Carpenter & Niem (1998), ONEP (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2013a, 2013b), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2018), GBIF (2019a).
- Codakia paytenorum* (Iredale, 1937). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Bussarawit (1995), Kasetsart University (2006), ONR & EPP (2006), Duangdee (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2013b).
- Codakia punctata* (Linnaeus, 1758). Also reported as: Lucina punctata Linnaeus. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Morlet (1889), Lynge (1909), Suvatti (1938), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Duangdee et al. (2009), Nabhitabhata (2009), Galli (2015), BEDO (2017a).
- Codakia tigrina* (Linnaeus, 1758). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nielsen (1976b), Tantanasiwong (1979), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Kasetsart University (2006), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2018), Duangdee et al. (2011, 2013a), Sanpanich (2011), BEDO (2017a), GBIF (2019a).
- Cryptophysema vesicula* (Gould, 1850). Also reported as: Loripes vesicula Gould; Anodontia vesicula (Reeve, 1850); Anodontia (Cryptophysema) vesicula (Gould, 1850); and Lucina (Thyasira) vesicula Gould, 1850. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Suvatti (1937), Taylor & Glover (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Reported as Anodontia pila (Reeve, 1850) by Nabhitabhata (2009) and BEDO (2017a), but Anodontia pila was synonymised with the Atlantic Anodontia alba Link, 1807, by Taylor & Glover (2005), and the species is actually Cryptophysema vesicula (Gould, 1850).
- Ctena bella* (Conrad, 1837)/Ctena divergens (Philippi, 1850). Also reported as: Epicodakia bella (Conrad, 1837); Epicodakia divergens (Philippi, 1850); and Codakia divergens Philippi, 1850. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nielsen (1976b), Tantanasiwong (1979), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Gemert (2003), Kasetsart University (2006), Duangdee (2007), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011, 2013a), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2018), Sanpanich (2011), BEDO (2017a), GBIF (2019a). Note: The name Ctena bella is usually used for Pacific shells and Ctena divergens for the Indian Ocean, but this may be a species complex (J. Taylor, pers. comm.).
- Ctena delicatula* (Pilsbry, 1904). Also reported as: Epicodakia delicatula (Pilsbry, 1904). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), Taylor et al. (2007), Meyer et al. (2008), Duangdee et al. (2011), Huber (2015), Glover & Taylor (2016), Glover et al. (2016).
- Discolucina virginea* (Deshayes, 1832). Reported as: Lucina argentea Reeve, 1850. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Divalinga sechellensis* (d'Orbigny, 1845). Also reported as: Divaricella sechellensis (d'Orbigny, 1846). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Divaricella ornatissima* (d'Orbigny, 1846). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Easmithia desiderata* (E. A. Smith, 1885). Reported as: Loripes (Loripes) desideratus (Smith, 1885). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Robba et al. (2002, 2004), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Epicodakia sweeti* (Hedley, 1899). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Duangdee et al. (2013b).
- Euanodontia ovum* (Reeve, 1850). Also reported as: Lucina (Thyasira) ovum Reeve, 1850; Anodontia ovum Reeve, 1850; and Anodontia (Euanodontia) ovum (Reeve, 1850). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge

- (1909), Taylor & Glover (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011, 2013b), Sanpanich (2011).
- Fimbria fimbriata* (Linnaeus, 1758). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Wells (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Fimbria soverbii* (Reeve, 1842). Reported as: Fimbria sowerbyi (Reeve, 1841). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Meyer et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011).
- Indoaustriella dalli* (Lynge, 1909). Also reported as: Lucina (Phacoides) dalli. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2013a), Glover & Taylor (2016), Glover et al. (2016).
- Indoaustriella lamprelli* Glover, Taylor & Williams, 2008. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Glover et al. (2008).
- Indoaustriella plicifera* (A. Adams, 1855). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Glover et al. (2008).
- Jallenia inanis* (Prashad, 1932). Reported as: "Cavatidens" imajimai (Habe, 1981). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Scott (1995).
- Lamellolucina dentifera* (Jonas, 1846). Reported as: Lucina dentifera (Jonas, 1846). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Scott (1995), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Lepidolucina odontotis* (Salisbury, 1934). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Glover & Taylor (2007, 2016), Sanpanich (2011).
- Lepidolucina venusta* (Philippi, 1847). Reported as: Lucina venusta (Philippi, 1847); Lucina (Lucinisca) venusta Philippi; and Miltha cf. venusta (Philippi, 1847). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Morlet (1889), Swennen et al. (2001), Robba et al. (2002), Gemert (2003), Glover & Taylor (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), GBIF (2019a).
- Liralucina lyngei* M. Huber, 2015. Reported as: Parvilucina (Parvilucina) pulchella (Lynge, 1909); and Codakia pulchella (Lynge, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Scott (1995), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), Huber (2015), Glover et al. (2016).
- Liralucina sperabilis* (Hedley, 1909). Reported as: Linga (Bellucina) cf. Liralucina sperabilis (Hedley, 1909). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2019).
- Pegophysema bialata* (Pilsbry, 1895). Reported as: Anodontia (? Pegophysema) bialata (Pilsbry, 1895). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Taylor & Glover (2005).
- Pegophysema philippiana* (Reeve, 1850). Reported as: Anodontia philippiana (Reeve, 1850); and Anodontia (Pegophysema) philippiana (Reeve, 1850). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Taylor & Glover (2005), Meyer et al. (2008). Reported as Anodontia edentula (Linnaeus, 1758); and Lucina (Thyasira) edentula Linnaeus, 1758, by Lynge (1909), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Scott (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Robba et al. (2002), Gemert (2003), Duangdee (2004), Duangdee et al. (2007, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), Glover & Taylor (2016), and BEDO (2017a). Taylor & Glover (2005) recommended abandoning the use of Anodontia edentula as there is no Linnean type and the description is brief and could be any species. Most references are to Pegophysema philippiana.
- Pillucina pisidium* (Dunker, 1860). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Taylor & Glover (2001), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), Negri et al. (2014), Glover et al. (2016), BEDO (2017a). Robba et al. (2004) stated that their specimens were actually Pillucina australis Glover & Taylor, 2001, but Glover et al. (2016) refer to Pillucina pisidium.
- Pillucina vietnamica* Zorina, 1978. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Taylor & Glover (2001), Taylor et al. (2007), Meyer et al. (2008), Glover & Taylor (2016), Glover et al. (2016), J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).

- Wallucina fijiensis* (E. A. Smith, 1885). Reported as: Codakia fijiensis Smith, 1885. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Taylor & Glover (2001), Nabhitabhata (2009).

Order Myida

Superfamily Dreissenoidae

Family Dreissenidae

- Mytilopsis sallei* [Récluz, 1849]. Also reported as: Mytilopsis adamsi Morrison, 1946. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Wangkulangkul & Lheknim (2008), Wangkulangkul (2018), Sanpanich & Wells (2019). This is an invasive species that originated either in the eastern Pacific Ocean (Mytilopsis adamsi) or Caribbean Sea (Mytilopsis sallei) and is widespread in ports in the Indo-Pacific region. Most papers use Mytilopsis sallei for the species, but some of the Thai literature uses Mytilopsis adamsi. The systematics of the species have not been formally established. See Willan et al. (2000) for a discussion of the issue.

- Gregariella barbata* (Reeve, 1858). Reported as: Trichomusculus barbatus (Reeve, 1858). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Gregariella coralliophaga* (Gmelin, 1791). Reported as: Coralliophaga (Coralliophaga) coralliophaga (Gmelin, 1791); and Botulina coralliophaga (Gmelin, 1791). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nielsen (1976a, 1976b), Tantanasiriwong (1979), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Gemert (2003), Nabhitabhata (2009), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Printrakoon et al. (2016), J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).
- Jolya arata* (Dunker, 1857). Reported as: Modiolus aratus Dunker, 1857; and Modiolus atratus Dunker, 1856. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Carpenter & Niem (1998), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011), BEDO (2017a), J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).
- Jolya elongata* (Swainson, 1821). Reported as: Modiolus (Modiolus) elongatus (Swainson, 1821); and Modiola elongata Swainson, 1821. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Robba et al. (2002), Nabhitabhata (2009), Huber (2010), GBIF (2019b).
- Jolya rhomboidea* (Reeve, 1857). Reported as: Modiola rhomboidea Hanley. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Leiosolenus divaricalx* (Iredale, 1939). Reported as: Lithophaga divaricalx Iredale, 1939. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Bussarawit (1995).
- Leiosolenus hanleyanus* (Reeve, 1857). Reported as: Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Bussarawit (1995), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Leiosolenus kleemanni* (Valentich-Scott, 2008). Reported as: Botula kleemanni Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Valentich-Scott & Tongkerd (2008).
- Leiosolenus kuehnelti* (Kleeman, 1977). Reported as: Lithophaga (Leiosolenus) kuehnelti Kleeman, 1977. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Leiosolenus lessepsianus* (Vaillant, 1865). Reported as: Lithophaga (Leiosolenus) lessepsianus (Vaillant, 1865). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a).
- Leiosolenus lima* (Jousseume in Lamy, 1919). Reported as: Lithophaga lima Lamy, 1919; and Lithophaga (Diberus) lima Lamy, 1919. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kurozumi et al. (1989), Bussarawit (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), Printrakoon et al. (2016), BEDO (2017a).
- Leiosolenus lithurus* (Pilsbry, 1905). Reported as: Lithophaga (Diberus) lithurus (Pilsbry). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kurozumi et al. (1989).
- Leiosolenus malaccanus* (Reeve, 1857). Also reported as: Lithophaga malaccana (Reeve, 1858); and Lithophaga (Diberus) malaccana (Reeve, 1857). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nielsen (1976a, 1976b), Tantanasiriwong (1979), Morris & Purchon (1981), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Kleeman (1984),

Order Ostreida

Superfamily Ostreoidea

Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010) reported that previous studies on oysters of the families Gryphaeidae and Ostreidae in Thailand are scarce and there is considerable confusion regarding the scientific names. Inconsistent taxonomic classification renders most of the published information uncertain. In some cases, unidentified or misidentified oysters (Nielsen, 1976; Tantanasiwong, 1979) were preserved in the PMBC collection so that it was possible for Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010) to revise them. The list presented here of the two families follows Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010) with the taxonomy updated according to WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).

Family Gryphaeidae

- Hyotissa hyotis* (Linnaeus, 1758). Reported as: Ostrea hyotis Linnaeus, 1758. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nielsen (1976b), Tantanasiwong (1979), Morris & Purchon (1981), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Kurozumi et al. - Hyotissa inermis* (G. B. Sowerby II, 1871). Reported as: Parahyotissa inermis (G. B. Sowerby II, 1871); Parahyotissa imbricata (Lamarck, 1819); and Hyotissa imbricata (Lamarck, 1819). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Yoosukh & Duangdee (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Gemert (2003), Kasetsart University (2006), Duangdee (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Not listed by Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), BEDO (2017a), GBIF (2019b).

Hyotissa numisma* (Lamarck, 1818). Reported as: Parahyotissa numisma (Lamarck, 1819) and Parahyotissa imbricata (Lamarck, 1819). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013). Not listed by Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010).

Hyotissa sinensis* (Gmelin, 1791). Reported as: Parahyotissa sinensis (Gmelin, 1791). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Not listed by Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), BEDO (2017a).

Family Ostreidae

Alectryonella plicatula* (Gmelin, 1791). Reported as: Ostrea plicata var. plicatula (Gmelin, 1791); and Alectryonella plicata (Gmelin). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Suvatti (1937, 1938), Nielsen (1976a), Tantanasiriwong (1979), Morris & Purchon (1981), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Carpenter & Niem (1998), BEDO (2017a).

Anomiostrea coralliophila* Habe, 1975. Also reported as: Ostrea pyxidata Adams & Reeve, 1850. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (1999), Gemert (2003), Nabhitabhata (2009), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013).

Dendostrea cristata* (Born, 1778). Reported as: Dendostrea gluacina (Lamarck, 1819). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Swennen et al. (2001).

Dendostrea folium* (Linnaeus, 1758). Also reported as: Alectryonella haliotidaea (Lamarck, 1819); Lopha folium (Linnaeus, 1758); and Pterostrea sp. cf. Pterostrea affinis (Sowerby). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Kurozumi et al. (1989), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Yoosukh & Duangdee (1999), Kasetsart University (2000), Robba et al. Magallana belcheri* (G. B. Sowerby II, 1871). Reported as: Crassostrea belcheri (Sowerby, 1871). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Chaitiamwong et al. (1971), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Nateewathana (1995), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Kasetsart University (2000), Klinbunga et al. (2005), Bussarawit et al. (2006), ONEP (2007), Duangdee et al. (2009), Nabhitabhata (2009), Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), BEDO (2017a).

Magallana bilineata* (Röding, 1798). Reported as: Crassostrea lugubris (Sowerby, 1871); Crassostrea bilineata (Röding, 1798); and Crassostrea iredalei Faustino, 1932. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Chaitiamwong et al. (1971), Nateewathana (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Kasetsart University (2000, 2006), Lam & Morton (2004), Klinbunga et al. (2005), Bussarawit et al. (2006), ONEP (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).

Magallana dactylena* (Iredale, 1939). Saccostrea dactylena Iredale, 1939. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).

Magallana gigas* (Thunberg, 1793). Reported as: Crassostrea gigas Thunberg, 1793; and Saccostrea gigas (Thunberg, 1793). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Robba et al. (2002), Printrakoon et al. (2008), Sanpanich (2011), GBIF (2019b).

Magallana rivularis* (Gould, 1861). Reported as: Ostrea rivularis Gould, 1861. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), GBIF (2019b). This species is shown as a taxon inquirendum by WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).

Nanostrea fluctigera* (Jousseume in Lamy, 1925). Reported as: Nanostrea exigua Harry, 1985. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), BEDO (2017a).

Ostrea denselamellosa* Lischke, 1869. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2002).

Planostrea pestigris* (Hanley, 1846). Also reported as: Ostrea pestigris Hanley, 1846; Dendostrea paulucciae (Crosse, 1869); Crassostrea paulucciae (Crosse, 1869); and Ostrea paulucciae Crosse, 1869. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Bernard et al. (1993), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Robba et al. (2002), Gemert (2003), Lam & Morton (2004, 2009), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), Tan & Morton (2009), Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010), Negri et al. (2014), BEDO (2017a), GBIF (2019b).

Pustulostrea australis* (Lamarck, 1819). Reported as: Pustulostrea tuberculata (Lamarck, 1819); and Ostrea tuberculata Lamarck, 1804. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010).

Saccostrea cucullata* (Born, 1778). Also reported as: Saccostrea forskalii Chemnitz, 1758. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Nielsen (1976a, 1976b), Tantanasiwong (1979), Morris & Purchon (1981), Nateewathana et al. ## Order Neogastropoda

Superfamily Buccinoidea

Family Buccinidae

- Pseudoneptunea varicosa* (Röding, 1798). Reported as: Pseudoneptunea varicosa (Gmelin, 1791). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Robba et al. (2004), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), GBIF (2019b).

Family Colubrariidae

- Colubraria muricata* (Lightfoot, 1786). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), GBIF (2019a).
- Colubraria nitidula* (G. B. Sowerby I, 1833). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), GBIF (2019a).
- Colubraria obscura* (Reeve, 1844). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Bouchet & Perrine (1996), BEDO (2017b).
- Colubraria tenera* (Gray, 1839). Reported as: Colubraria cf. castanea (Kuroda & Habe, 1952). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005).
- Kanamarua adonis* (Dall, 1919). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b).

Family Columbellidae

- Anachis miser* (G. B. Sowerby I, 1844). No Thai locality provided. Reported by: Monsecour & Köhler (2006).
- Anachis sanfelipensis* H. N. Lowe, 1935. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Anachis terpsichore* (G. B. Sowerby II, 1822). Andaman Sea. Reported by: J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).
- Cotonopsis phuketensis* (Kosuge, Roussy & Muangman, 1998). Reported as: Cotonopsis (Cotonopsis) phuketensis (Kosuge, Roussy & Muangman, 1998); and Cotonopsis (Cotonopsis) vanwallegheimi Kronenberg & Dekker, 1998. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kosuge et al. (1998), Kronenberg & Dekker (1998, 1999), Galli (2015), GBIF (2019a).
- Euplica deshayesii* (Crosse, 1859). Reported as: Pyrene deshayesii (Crosse, 1859). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017b).
- Euplica livescens* (Reeve, 1859). Reported as: Mitrella livescens (Reeve, 1859). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Duangdee et al. (2013b).
- Euplica scripta* (Lamarck, 1822). Also reported as: Pyrene versicolor (Sowerby, 1832); and Euplica versicolor (G. B. Sowerby I, 1832). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Kurozumi et al. (1989), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013), Kostina et al. (2016), GBIF (2019a).
- Euplica turturina* (Lamarck, 1822). Also reported as: Pyrene turturina (Lamarck, 1822). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011, 2013a, 2013b), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Euplica varians* (Sowerby, 1832). Reported as: Pyrene varians (Sowerby, 1832). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017b).
- Graphicomassa ligula* (Duclos, 1840). Also reported as: Mitrella ligula (Duclos, 1840); and Mitrella albina (Kiener, 1841). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), Duangdee et al. (2013b).
- Indomitrella puella* (G. B. Sowerby I, 1844). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kostina et al. (2016).
- Mitrella essingtonensis* (Reeve, 1859). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kostina et al. (2016).

- Mitrella scripta* (Linnaeus, 1758). Reported as: Pyrene scripta (Linnaeus, 1758); and Columbella scripta (Lamarck, 1816). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Gemert (2003), Wells (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017b).
- Mokumea cf. albovittata* (Lopes, Coelho & Cardoso, 1965). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Mokumea divaricata* (Pilsbry, 1904). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2007).
- Pardalinops testudinaria* (Link, 1807). Reported as: Pyrene testudinaria (Link, 1807). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Swennen et al. (2001), Gemert (2003), Wells (2005), Duangdee (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b).
- Pictocolumbella ocellate* (Link, 1807). Reported as: Columbella fulgurans Lamarck, 1819; and Pyrene ocellata (Link, 1807). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889), Duangdee et al. (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Pyrene flava* (Bruguière, 1789). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013), Duangdee et al. (2011).
- Pyrene punctata* (Bruguière, 1789). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013, 2018), Duangdee et al. (2011).
- Pyrene splendidula* (G. B. Sowerby I, 1844). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kostina et al. (2016).
- Pyreneola semipicta* (G. B. Sowerby III, 1894). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Monsecour & Köhler (2006).
- Seminella comistea* (Melvill, 1906). Reported as: Zafra comistea (Melvill, 1906). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2007).
- Seminella peasei* (Martens & Langkavel, 1871). Reported as: Zafra (Seminella) peasei (Martens & Langkavel, 1871). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Zafra hervieri* (Pace, 1902). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Zafra mitriformis* A. Adams, 1860. Reported as: Zafra (Zafra) mitriformis A. Adams, 1860. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Zafra pumila* (Dunker, 1858). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Robba et al. (2004), Negri et al. (2014), BEDO (2017e).
- Zafra troglodytes* (Souverbie in Souverbie & Montrouzier, 1866). Reported as: Zafra (Zafra) troglodytes (Souverbie, 1866). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), BEDO (2017e).

Family Fasciariidae

- Benimakia lanceolata* (Reeve, 1847). Also reported as: Latirus lanceolatus (Reeve, 1847). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kilburn & Hylleberg (1998), Wells (2005), Thamrongnawasawat et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011, 2013a, 2013b), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013, 2018).
- Filifusus filamentosus* (Röding, 1798). Also reported as: Pleuroploca filamentosa (Röding, 1798); and Fasciolaria filamentosa (Roeding). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: THNHM, KUMF, Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Way & Purchon (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Wells (2005), ONR & EPP (2006), Thamrongnawasawat et al. ### Family Harpidae

- Harpa amouretta* Röding, 1798. Reported as: Harpa amouretta minor Lamarck, 1822. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017b).
- Harpa articularis* (Lamarck, 1822). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: KUMF, Rehder (1973), Tantanasiriwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Dance & Poppe (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Duangdee (2004), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b).
- Harpa davidis* Röding, 1798. Andaman Sea. Reported by: THNHM, Rehder (1973), Subba Rao & Dey (2000), Merle & Pacaud (2003).
- Harpa harpa* (Linnaeus, 1758). Also reported as: Harpa hurpa. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: THNHM, Carpenter & Niem (1998), KURDI et al. (2004), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Harpa major* (Röding, 1798). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Carpenter & Niem (1998), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), GBIF (2019b).
- Morum ninomiyai* Emerson, 1986. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Emerson (1986), Galli (2015), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a).

Family Marginellidae

- Cryptospira bridgettae* Wakefield, 2010. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wakefield (2010).
- Cryptospira dactylus* (Lamarck, 1822). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Cossignani (2006), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Cryptospira elegans* (Gmelin, 1791). Also reported as: Persicula elegans Gmelin; and Marginella elegans. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Aungtonya & Hylleberg (1998), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), Wakefield (2010), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), Galli (2015), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a).
- Cryptospira fischeri* (Bavay, 1903). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wakefield (2010), BEDO (2017b).
- Cryptospira glauca* Jousseume, 1875. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b).
- Cryptospira marchii* Jousseume, 1875. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wakefield (2010).
- Cryptospira mccleryi* Wakefield, 2010. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Wakefield (2010).
- Cryptospira praecallosa* (Higgins, 1876). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wakefield (2010), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Cryptospira strigata* (Dillwyn, 1817). Also reported as: Cryptospira strigata forma unicolor; and Cryptospira strigata unicolor Bert, 1985. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Cossignani (2006), Wakefield (2010), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), Galli (2015), GBIF (2019a).
- Cryptospira tricincta* (Hinds, 1844). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b).
- Cryptospira ventricosa* (Fischer von Waldheim, 1807). Also reported as: Marginella ventricosa G. Fisher. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Swennen et al. (2001), Nabhitabhata (2009), Wakefield (2010), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a).
- Heterocithara himerta* (Melvill & Standen, 1896). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Volvarina angustata* (G. B. Sowerby II, 1846). Reported as: Marginella angustata (Sowerby, 1846). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), BEDO (2017b).
- Volvarina hirasei* (Bavay, 1917). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Volvarina philippinarum* (Redfield, 1848). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2004).

Order [unassigned] Caenogastropoda

Superfamily Campaniloidea

Family Plesiotrochidae

- Plesiotrochus souverbianus* P. Fischer, 1878. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), BEDO (2017e).

Superfamily Cerithioidea

Family Batillariidae

- Batillaria sordida* (Gmelin, 1791). Reported as: Cerithium bornii G. B. Sowerby II, 1855. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889).

Family Cerithiidae

- Bittium glareosum* Gould, 1861. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), Tanamai & Nabhitabhata (2016), BEDO (2017e).
- Bittium impendens* (Hedley, 1899). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Bittium reticulatum* (da Costa, 1778). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Sawatna et al. (2012).
- Bittium simplex* (Jeffreys, 1867). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sawatna et al. (2012), Tanamai & Nabhitabhata (2016).
- Cerithidium cerithinum* (Philippi, 1849). Also reported as: Fenella cerithine (Philippi, 1848). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003), Robba et al. (2004), Sawatna et al. (2012).
- Cerithidium perparvulum* (R. B. Watson, 1886). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Cerithidium submammillatum* (De Rayneval & Ponzi, 1854). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Sawatna et al. (2012).
- Cerithium alutaceum* (Gould, 1861). Also reported as: Cerithium stigmatosum Gould, 1861. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), Tanamai & Nabhitabhata (2016), BEDO (2017e).
- Cerithium citrinum* G. B. Sowerby II, 1855. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), Kostina et al. (2016).
- Cerithium columna* G. B. Sowerby I, 1834. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), Houbriek (1992), Subba Rao & Dey (2000), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a).

Family Trochidae

- Calliotrochus marmoreus* (Pease, 1861). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Chrysostoma paradoxum* (Born, 1778). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: THNHM, KUMF, Suvatti (1938), Kurozumi et al. (1989), Gemert (2003), Duangdee (2004), Wells (2005), Kasetsart University (2006), ONR & EPP (2006), ONEP (2007), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011, 2013b), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013, 2018). Reported as Trochus nicobaricus Gmelin, 1791, by Morlet (1889). Gulf of Thailand. There is no Trochus nicobaricus Gmelin, 1791, listed in WoRMS Editorial Board (2019), but there is a Turbo nicobaricus Gmelin, 1791 (a synonym of Chrysostoma paradoxum [Born, 1778]), which is likely to be the species reported by Morlet (1889), GBIF (2019a).
- Clanculus bicarinatus* Angas, 1880. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Clanculus bronni* Dunker, 1860. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Clanculus clanguloides* (Wood, 1828). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2018).
- Clanculus denticulatus* (Gray, 1827). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), Kostina et al. (2016), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a). The status of this species is uncertain. There are numerous references to it occurring in Thailand by various authors, and GBIF (2020) shows the species to be widespread in the Indo-West Pacific, but Wilson (1993) shows the range as southern Australia.
- Clanculus edentulus* A. Adams, 1853. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Kostina et al. (2016).
- Clanculus margaritarius* (Philippi, 1846). Reported as: Clanculus unedo Adams, 1853. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Gemert (2003), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013), Duangdee et al. (2011), BEDO (2017b).
- Clanculus microdon* (A. Adams, 1853). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009).
- Clanculus philippii* (Koch in Philippi, 1843). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013).
- Clanculus samoensis* (Hombron & Jacquinot, 1848). Also reported as: Clanculus atropurpureus (Gould, 1849). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: THNHM, Way & Purchon (1981), Gemert (2003), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), Kostina et al. (2016).
- Conotalopia musiva* (Gould, 1861). Reported as: Pseudominolia musiva (Gould, 1861). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Isanda coronata* A. Adams, 1854. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b).
- Jujubinus gilberti* (Montrouzier, 1878). Reported as: Cantharidus gilberti (Montrouzier, 1878). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003).
- Jujubinus cf. polychromus* (A. Adams, 1853). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017e).
- Monilea belcheri* (Philippi, 1849). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: KUMF, Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Swennen et al. (2001), Gemert (2003), Duangdee et al. (2009, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b).

- Turbo sparverius* Gmelin, 1791. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: GBIF (2019b).
- Turbo stenogyrus* P. Fischer, 1873. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b).
- Turbo tursicus* Reeve, 1848. Also reported as: Turbo (Marmarostoma?) tursicus Reeve, 1848; and Turbo somnueki Patamakanthin, 2001. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Patamakanthin (2001), Alf & Kreipl (2003), Thamrongnawasawat et al. (2008), Aungtonya & Sungjeen (2014), BEDO (2017b).

Class Polyplacophora

Subclass Neoloricata

Order Chitonida

Suborder Acanthochitonina

Superfamily Cryptoplacoidea

Family Acanthochitonidae

Craspedochiton laqueatus (G. B. Sowerby II, 1842). Reported as: Craspedochiton tetrica (Carpenter in Pilsbry, 1893). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Schwabe (2006).

Suborder Chitonina

Superfamily Chitonoidea

Family Chitonidae

Acanthopleura gemmata (Blainville, 1825). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Wells (2005), Duangdee et al. (2009), GBIF (2019a), J. D. Taylor et al. (unpublished data).

Liolophura japonica (Lischke, 1873). Reported as: Nuttallina allantophora Dall, 1919. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kurozumi et al. (1989), Higo et al. (1999), GBIF (2019a, 2019b).

Onithochiton lyellii (Sowerby in Broderip & Sowerby, 1832). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Way & Purchon (1981).

Rhyssoplax pulcherrima (G. B. Sowerby II, 1842). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kaas et al. (2006), GBIF (2019a).

Family Ischnochitonidae

Ischnochiton bouryi Dupuis, 1917. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a).

Order Lepidopleurida

Suborder Lepidopleurina

Family Leptochitonidae

Leptochiton vietnamensis Sirenko, 1998. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Schwabe (2006).

Class Scaphopoda

Order Dentaliida

Family Dentaliidae

Dentalium aprinum Linnaeus, 1767. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Swennen et al. (2001), GBIF (2019a).

Dentalium variabile Deshayes, 1825. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2003, 2004), Chaiwathee et al. (2007), Negri et al. (2014).

Graptacme eborea (Conrad, 1846). Reported as: Dentalium (Rhabdus) eburneum Linnaeus, 1767. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1937, 1938), Nabhitabhata (2009).

Paradentalium hexagonum (Gould, 1859). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2004).

Family Laevidentaliidae

Laevidentalium eburneum (Linnaeus, 1767). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Scarabino (1995, 2008), GBIF (2019a).

Family Gadiliniidae

Episiphon virgula (Hedley, 1903). Reported as: Episiphon subrectum. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2003, 2004).

Order Gadilida

Suborder Gadilimorpha

Family Gadilidae

Dischides prionotus* (R. B. Watson, 1879). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Robba et al. (2004), Sawatna et al. (2012).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are pleased to acknowledge the extensive work undertaken on the marine and estuarine molluscs of Thailand by countless researchers over many years. The present book is a summary of their work. John Taylor of the Natural History Museum, London, kindly examined an earlier version of the lucinid section and added unpublished results from a survey of marine molluscs in Ranong. Andreia Salvador of the Natural History Museum, London, provided access to the museum's extensive molluscan library. In Perth, Lisa Kirkendale and Corey Whisson of the Western Australian Museum also provided access to important references. Three reviewers made excellent comments on the draft manuscript and we appreciate their assistance. Ng Ting Hui and Cai Peixuan of the National University of Singapore provided essential advice in preparing the manuscript for publication.

APPENDIX

Appendix 1. Species recorded in the literature from Thailand that are rejected or are considered to be doubtful.

Class Bivalvia

Family Anatinellidae

Raeta meridionalis* Tate, 1889. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Harry (1969) lists this species as being of uncertain status, but it is a southern Australian species, with a type locality of Middle Harbour, South Australia.

Family Arcidae

Anadara trapezia* (Deshayes, 1840). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. An eastern Australian species (ALA, 2020; AMS, 2020).

Mosambicarca mosambicana* (Bianconi, 1856). Reported as: Anadara mosambicana (Bianconi, 1850). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Vongpanich (1996), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Vongpanich (1999) corrected the identification to Anadara sp. but did not identify it to species.

Scaphula pinna* Benson, 1856. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Vongpanich (1996), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Sanpanich (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Robba et al. (2002, 2003), Wells (2005), Kasetsart University (2006), Duangdee (2007), Printrakoon et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009), Galli (2015). Justification: WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) lists this as a freshwater species.

Family Donacidae

Donax acuticarinatus* Sowerby, 1866. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Bertin (1881), Serène (1937), Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. A junior synonym of the eastern Pacific Donax carinatus Hanley, 1843 (Signorelli & Printrakoon, 2020).

Donax variabilis* Say, 1822. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. East coast of the United States (Mikkelsen, 1985; Adamkewicz, 1989).

Family Galeommatidae

Scintilla dubia* (Deshayes, 1856). Also reported as: Scintilla duia (Deshayes, 1856). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lützen & Nielsen (2005), Hylleberg & Aungtonya (2013), BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Coan & Scott (2012) noted that the record from Phuket by Lützen & Nielsen (2005) is probably in error. The holotype from Ecuador is figured in Coan & Scott (2012).

Family Lucinidae

Anodontia edentula* (Linnaeus, 1758). Also reported as: Lucina (Thyasira) edentula Linnaeus, 1758. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Carpenter & Niem (1998), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Swennen et al. (2001), Robba et al. (2002), Duangdee (2004), Duangdee et al. (2007, 2009, 2011), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a). Justification: Taxonomy. Taylor & Glover (2005) recommended abandoning the use of Anodontia edentula as there is no Linnean type and the description is brief and could be any species. Most references are to Pegophysema philippiana (Reeve, 1850).

Anodontia pila* (Reeve, 1850). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a). Justification: Taxonomy. Anodontia pila was synonymised with the Atlantic Anodontia alba Link, 1807, and the species is actually Cryptophysema vesicula (Gould, 1850) (see Taylor & Glover, 2005).

Cardiolucina crassilirata* (Tate, 1887). Reported as: Linga crassilirata (Tate, 1887). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011), Duangdee et al. (2013b). Justification: Geography. A southern Australian species (ALA, 2019).

Ctena gunnamatta* (Iredale, 1930). Reported as: Epicodakia gunnamatta Iredale, 1930. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. The type locality for this species is Gunnamatta Bay in southern Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, at a latitude of 38°S, a temperate region. ALA (2019) does not have any records of the species.

Epicodakia consettiana* Iredale, 1930. Reported as: Codakia minima Tension Woods, 1875. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lynge (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. Codakia minima Tension Woods, 1875, was described from Tasmania. Iredale (1930) provided a new name, Epicodakia consettiana Iredale, 1930, when recording the species from New South Wales. It is a southern Australian species (ALA, 2019).

Lucinoma heroica* (Dall, 1901). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. A deepwater species from the Pacific coast of Mexico (J. Taylor, pers. comm.).

Family Mactridae

Mactra pura* Reeve, 1854. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. A southeastern Australian species (MRGV, 1984).

Mactra* cf. westralis Lamprell & Whitehead, 1990. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003). Justification: Geography. Endemic to Western Australia (Lamprell & Whitehead, 1990).

Family Mesodesmatidae

Paphies australis* (Gmelin, 1791). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Endemic to New Zealand (ALA, 2020).

Family Mytilidae

Botula fusca* (Gmelin, 1791). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: GBIF (2019b). Justification: Geography. A Florida Keys species (Valentich-Scott & Dinesen, 2004).

Brachidontes pharaonis* (Fischer, 1870). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Swennen et al. (2001), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Brachidontes pharaonis is native to the Red Sea. The Thai references are likely to be a misidentification of Brachidontes variabilis (Krauss, 1848).

Brachidontes rostratus* (Dunker, 1857). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981), BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. A southeastern Australian species (ALA, 2020).

Family Mytilidae

Lithophaga antillarum* (d'Orbigny, 1853). Reported as: Lithophaga straminea Dunker, 1880. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. Occurs in the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico (WoRMS Editorial Board, 2019).

Modiolaria opifex* Philippi, 1841. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Lyngé (1909), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). It is listed in Kleeman (1983), but the only reference is Lyngé (1909).

Musculus discors* (Linnaeus, 1767). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: GBIF (2019b). Justification: Geography. Occurs on both sides of the North Atlantic and along the North Pacific coast of North America (OBIS, 2020).

Musculus varicosus* (Gould, 1861). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. A southeastern Australian species (ALA, 2020).

Family Noetidae

Striarca lamyi* Koperberg, 1931. Reported as: Arca lamyi (Koperberg, 1931). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019); it is shown as a fossil by Fossilworks (2020).

Family Ostreidae

Crassostrea rhizophorae* (Guilding, 1828). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Occurs in the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico (WoRMS Editorial Board, 2019).

Dendostrea frons* (Linnaeus, 1758). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003). Justification: Geography. Occurs in the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico (WoRMS Editorial Board, 2019; STRI, 2019).

Ostrea edulis* (Linnaeus, 1758). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1937, 1938), Duangdee et al. (2011). Justification: Geography. Status uncertain. Not listed by Bussarawit & Cedhagen (2010) in their revision of Thai oysters. However, the species has been introduced for aquaculture in a number of countries and Yang et al. (2019) list a production of four tonnes per year in Thailand.

Family Pectinidae

Delectopecten vitreus* (Gmelin, 1791). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. North Atlantic species (GBIF, 2020).

- Mesopeplum fenestratum* (Hedley, 1901). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Southern Australian species (Dijkstra & Beu, 2018; ALA, 2020).
- Mimachlamys funebris* (Reeve, 1853). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Northern Australia (Dijkstra & Beu, 2018; ALA, 2020).
- Mimachlamys inuata* (Linnaeus, 1758). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019), or other websites.
- Mimachlamys scabricostata* (G. B. Sowerby III, 1915). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Northern Australia (Dijkstra & Beu, 2018; ALA, 2020).
- Mirapecten tuberosus* Dijkstra & Kilburn, 2001. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Western Indian Ocean (Dijkstra & Kilburn, 2001).
- Pecten fumatus* Reeve, 1852. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia, Tasman Sea and New Zealand (Dijkstra & Marshall, 1997; Dijkstra & Beu, 2018).
- Talochlamys pulleineana* (Tate, 1887). Reported as: Mimachlamys famigerator (Iredale, 1925). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Southern Australian species (Dijkstra & Beu, 2018; ALA, 2019).

Family Pholadidae

- Barnea australasiae* (G. B. Sowerby II, 1849). Reported as: Pholas australasiae Sowerby, 1849. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889), Lyngø (1909), Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. Southern Australian species (ALA, 2019).
- Pholas dactylus* Linnaeus, 1758. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kasetsart University (2006). Justification: Geography. Northwestern Atlantic species (WoRMS Editorial Board, 2019).

Family Psammobiidae

- Asaphis deflorata* (Linnaeus, 1758). Also reported as: Venus deflorata Linnaeus, 1758. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Lyngø (1909), Suvatti (1938), Aungtonya et al. (1999), Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Caribbean species. It is likely all records refer to Asaphis violascens (Willan, 1993).
- Gari modesta* (Deshayes, 1855). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (ALA, 2019).
- Plebidonax deltoides* (Lamarck, 1818). Reported as: Donax deltoides Lamarck, 1818. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Carpenter & Niem (1998), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. Southeastern Australia (MRGV, 1984).
- Psammosolen esaratus* Philippi. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) or other internet sites.
- Solenotellina emingina* Deshayes. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) or other internet sites.

Family Tellinidae

- Pseudarcopagia botanica* Hedley, 1918. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Sanpanich (2011). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (ALA, 2019).

Family Veneridae

- Dosinia victoriae* (Gatliff & Gabriel, 1914). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Kasetsart University (2006), Duangdee (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (Cotton, 1961).
- Placamen placidum* (Philippi, 1844). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Southeastern Australia (ALA, 2020).
- Polititapes aureus* (Gmelin, 1791). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Northeastern Atlantic Ocean, Mediterranean Sea and Black Sea (OBIS, 2020).
- Paphia* (Ruditapes) gibba Gmelin, 1791. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1937), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) or an alternative method.
- Paphia* (Ruditapes) indica Gmelin, 1791. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1937, 1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019), but WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) does list Tapes indica G. B. Sowerby II, 1852, accepted as Ruditapes philippinarum (Adams & Reeve, 1850).
- Venus dysira* Chemnitz. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Suvatti (1938), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019).

Family Vesicomysidae

Calyplogena magnifica Boss & R. D. Turner, 1980. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017a). Justification: Geography. Galapagos Rift bivalve (Reid, 1990).

Class Cephalopoda

Family Enteractopodidae

Enteractopus dofleini (Wülker, 1910). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. This is a temperate North Pacific species. No record in the tropics or the tropical Indian Ocean (Norman et al., 2016).

Family Idiosepiidae

Alloteuthis subulata (Lamarck, 1798). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: GBIF (2019b). Justification: Geography. East Atlantic species (GBIF, 2020).

Idiosepius paradoxus (Ortmann, 1888). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Asian North Pacific (Sato et al., 2009).

Family Loliginidae

Lolliguncula (Lolliguncula) panamanensis Berry, 1911. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), BEDO (2017d), Nabhitabhata et al. (2019). Justification: Geography. West coast of Central America (GBIF, 2019).

Family Octopodidae

Abdopus cf. abaculus (Norman & Sweeney, 1997). Reported as: Octopus cf. abaculus Norman & Sweeney, 1997. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Aungtonya et al. (2014). Justification: Geography. Known only from its type locality, the Philippines (Norman et al., 2016).

Family Ommastrephidae

Dosidicus gigas (d'Orbigny [in 1834–1847], 1835). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. East Pacific species (GBIF, 2020). Imported frozen from South America for canning and re-exported. They are also sold in many Thai supermarkets.

Family Sepiariidae

Sepioloidea lineolata (Quoy & Gaimard, 1832). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Australian species (ALA, 2020).

Family Sepiidae

Onykia carriboea Lesueur, 1821. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017d), Nabhitabhata et al. (2019). Justification: Geography. Gulf of Mexico, Northeastern Atlantic Ocean (Spain and Portugal) and the Mediterranean coast of Spain (WoRMS Editorial Board, 2019).

Sepia apama Gray, 1849. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (ALA, 2020).

Sepia officinalis Linnaeus, 1758. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. East Atlantic and Mediterranean Sea (GBIF, 2020).

Sepia smithi Hoyle, 1885. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Northern Australia (ALA, 2020).

Sepiella ornata (Rang, 1837). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. East Atlantic (GBIF, 2020).

Class Gastropoda

Family Aeolidiidae

Cerberilla incola Burn, 1974. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Chavanich et al. (2013). Justification: Geography. Southeastern Australia (ALA, 2019).

Family Amphibolidae

Salinator fragilis (Lamarck, 1822). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Negri et al. (2014). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (GBIF, 2020).

Family Calyptraeidae

Calyptraea scabris. No Thai locality provided. Reported by: THNHM. Justification: Taxonomy. Listed by THNHM without author and date, this species could not be verified through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) and is not shown on any other websites.

Family Cassidae

Semicassis faurotis (Jousseume, 1888). Reported as: Phalium faurotis. No Thai locality provided. Reported by: THNHM. Justification: Geography. Western Indian Ocean (Abbott, 1968).

Family Cerithiidae

Cerithium corallinum G. B. Sowerby II, 1855. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) or Ruhoff (1980). Possibly a misspelling of Cerithium coralium Kiener, 1841.

Family Chilodontaidae

Herpetopoma aspersum (Philippi, 1846). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Duangdee et al. (2011), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Southern Australia (Wilson, 1993).

Hybochelus triangularis A. Adams. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Tantanasiwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), BEDO (2017b). Justification: Taxonomy. Cannot be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) or Ruhoff (1980).

Family Chromodorididae

Goniobranchus rufomaculatus (Pease, 1871). Reported as: Chromodoris histrio Bergh, 1878. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Jensen (2007), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Jensen (2007) states the Thai specimens are either Chromodoris tumulifera Collingwood, 1881, or Chromodoris bimaensis Bergh, 1905.

Family Conidae

Conus senator Linnaeus, 1758. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889). Justification: Taxonomy. WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) states: "unaccepted (Nomenclaturally invalid name, placed on the Official Index of Invalid and Rejected Specific Names in Zoology (ICZN Opinion n°753)".

Conus victoriae Reeve, 1843. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Endemic to northwestern Australia (Wilson, 1993).

Family Costellariidae

Vexillum japonicum A. Adams, 1864. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b). Justification: Geography. Japan (GBIF, 2020).

Family Cypraeidae

Notocypraea comptonii (Gray, 1847). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013). Justification: Geography. Temperate Australia (Wilson, 1993).

Notocypraea pulicaria (Reeve, 1846). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013). Justification: Geography. Temperate Australia (Wilson, 1993).

Family Dendrodorididae

Dendrodoris senegalensis Bouchet, 1975. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Thamrongnawasawat et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. West coast of Africa (Bouchet, 1975).

Family Drilliidae

Paradrillia serena* (P. J. Fischer, 1927). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003). Justification: Fossil species (Leloux & Wesselingh, 2009).

Family Epitoniidae

Boreoscala blainei* (Clench & R. D. Turner, 1953). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b). Justification: Geography. Florida (Rosenberg et al., 2009).

Family Eulimidae

Sticteulima wareni* Engl, 1997. Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019c). Justification: Geography. Described from the Canary Islands in the Atlantic Ocean (Engl, 1997).

Family Fasciolaridae

Goniofusus spectrum* (A. Adams & Reeve, 1848). Reported as: Fusinus spectrum (A. Adams & Reeve, 1848). Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019a). Justification: Geography. Goniofusus spectrum is a Panamic species (Callomon & Snyder, 2008). The Thai species is possibly Fusinus stannum Callomon & Snyder, 2008.

Latirus pulchellus* (Reeve, 1847). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Gemert (2003). Justification: Taxonomy. Could not be verified through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019), but WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) lists the Mediterranean Fusinus pulchellus (Philippi, 1840).

Family Ficidae

Ficus subintermedia* (d'Orbigny, 1852). No Thai locality provided. Reported by: THNHM. Justification: Fossil species (WoRMS Editorial Board (2018)).

Family Haliotidae

Haliotis iris* Gmelin, 1791. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Galli (2015). Justification: Geography. New Zealand (Spencer et al., 2009).

Family Littorinidae

Echinolittorina australis* (Gray, 1826). Also reported as: Nodilittorina nodosa (Gray, 1839). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), GBIF (2019a, 2019b). Justification: Geography. Endemic to Western Australia (Wilson, 1993; Reid, 2006).

Echinolittorina fejeensis* (Reeve, 1857). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Sanpanich et al. (2004), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Tropical Pacific centred on Fiji (Reid, 2006).

Echinolittorina miliaris* (Quoy & Gaimard, 1833). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: GBIF (2019b). Justification: Geography. Reid (2007) discusses the complex use of the name Echinolittorina miliaris but considers it to be endemic to Ascension Island in the Atlantic Ocean. Echinolittorina miliaris was not recorded by Sanpanich et al. (2004).

Echinolittorina millegrana* (Philippi, 1848). Reported as: Nodilittorina millegrana (Philippi, 1848). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Rosewater (1970), Tantanasiriwong (1978), Nateewathana et al. (1981), Bussarawit (1995), Subba Rao & Dey (2000), Nabhitabhata (2009), Kostina et al. (2016), BEDO (2017b), GBIF (2019a, 2019b). Justification: Taxonomy. Rosewater (1970) considered Echinolittorina reticulata to be a synonym of Echinolittorina millegrana, but Reid (2006) separated the two species, and restricted Echinolittorina millegrana to the northwestern Indian Ocean and Red Sea. The Thai records of Echinolittorina millegrana follow Rosewater (1970) and are probably all Echinolittorina reticulata.

Echinolittorina trochoides* (Gray, 1839). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: KUMF, Swennen et al. (2001), Duangdee (2004), Sanpanich et al. (2004), Wells (2005), ONR & EPP (2006), Reid (2006), Kasetsart University (2007), Thamrongnawasawat et al. (2008), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Taxonomy. Reid (2006) discusses the complex use of the name Echinolittorina trochoides (Gray, 1839) and considers it to probably be a synonym of Echinolittorina malaccana (Philippi, 1847).

Littoraria filosa* (G. B. Sowerby I, 1832). Reported as: Littorina filosa G. B. Sowerby I, 1832. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889). Justification: Geography. Reid (1986) shows the distribution of this species as northern Australia, southern Indonesia and southern New Guinea. Littoraria filosa was not recorded by Sanpanich et al. (2004).

Littoraria philippiana* (Reeve, 1857). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Morlet (1889). Justification: Geography. Reid (1986) shows the distribution of this species as the east coast of northern Australia and southern New Guinea. Littoraria philippiana was not recorded by Sanpanich et al. (2004).

Family Marginellidae

Cryptospira glauca* Jousseume, 1875. Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b). Justification: Geography. Cryptospira glauca is restricted to the Bay of Bengal (northeast Sri Lanka and east coast of India). The Thai records are likely to be Cryptospira marchii (Wakefield, 2010).

Rivomarginella morrisoni* Brandt, 1968. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Galli (2015). Justification: WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) lists this as a freshwater species.

Family Muricidae

Ergalatax nodulosus* (Pease, 1869). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Bussarawit (1991). Justification: Taxonomy. Could not be confirmed through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). Ruhoff (1980) lists Engina nodulosus Pease, 1869 as the only species with that species name described by Pease but this is a columbellid, not a muricid.

Purpura panama* (Röding, 1798). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Carpenter & Niem (1998), Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. WoRMS Editorial Board (2019) shows this as a species from the east coast of southern Africa.

Thais undata*. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: THNHM. Justification: Taxonomy. Unable to confirm through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). Possibly Purpura undata Lamarck, 1822, which is now recognised as Reishia bitubercularis (Lamarck, 1822), which is present in Thailand.

Family Nacellidae

Cellana conciliata* Iredale, 1940. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Shown by Powell (1973) and Wilson (1993) as an eastern Australian species from Queensland.

Cellana grata* (Gould, 1859). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: KUMF, Duangdee (2004), Duangdee et al. (2009), Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Shown by Powell (1973) as a species from Japan and Korea.

Family Nassariidae

Nassarius aricularis* (Linnaeus). Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981). Justification: Taxonomy. Unable to confirm through WoRMS Editorial Board (2019). Possibly a misspelling of Nassarius arcularius (Linnaeus, 1758).

Tritia obsoleta* (Say, 1822). Reported as: Ilyanassa obsoleta (Say, 1822). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. East coast of the United States (GBIF, 2019).

Family Naticidae

Euspira yokoyamai* (Kuroda & Habe, 1952). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Japan (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Natica luculenta* Iredale, 1929. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Eastern Australia (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Natica marochiensis* (Gmelin, 1791). Reported as: Natica (Natica) luridis. Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: THNHM. Justification: Geography. Western Atlantic (Florida to Brazil and eastern Atlantic) (Rosenberg et al., 2009; (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Natica simplex* G. B. Sowerby III, 1897. Reported as: Natica simplex (Röding, 1798). Gulf of Thailand. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009). Justification: Geography. South Africa (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Natica unifasciata* Lamarck, 1822. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2009, 2013). Justification: Geography. Tropical West America (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Notocochlis antoni* (Philippi, 1851). Reported as: Natica antoni Philippi. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981). Justification: Geography. Mozambique (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Polinices putealis* Garrard, 1961. Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013), BEDO (2017b). Justification: Geography. Eastern Australia (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Polinices sagamiensis* Pilsbry, 1904. Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nateewathana et al. (1981). Justification: Geography. Japan (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

Sigatica bathyraphe* (Pilsbry, 1911). Gulf of Thailand, Andaman Sea. Reported by: Nabhitabhata (2009), Sanpanich & Duangdee (2013). Justification: Geography. Japan (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).

- Sinum concavum* (Lamarck, 1822). Andaman Sea. Reported by: BEDO (2017b). Justification: Geography. West Africa (Torigoe & Inaba, 2011).
